Dear Rob,

I consider the day that we met at the Milwaukee show to be a fortuitous one for Mangar. At the time, planning to buy our first piece of die cutting equipment, we were introduced to your company and saw a demonstration of your Crest 2535. Our first impression was that the Crest was a well designed, easily set-up, quiet and robust machine. We went to the show thinking that we would buy competitive equipment and left the show convinced that the Crest was the machine to buy.

The rest is good history. Mangar bought a Crest 2535, installed it and received comprehensive training on how to set it up, use the machine and maintain it. The machine allowed us to learn the die cutting process quickly and did not disappoint. It enabled us to migrate our entire subcontracted die cutting portfolio to our own facility in a very short period of time. Since then, the Crest has become the mainstay of our die cutting operation, providing reliable service and easy setups.

And when we jammed the press due to our inexperience, My Service Needs was there to help us repair everything. Now, in addition to a competent service and training staff, My Press Needs has added additional process experts that have helped us solve difficult die cutting problems. Our decision to buy a Crest was a good one.
